

Kristin Glass - Board Member

What inspired you to become a part of the Child Abuse Council Board of Directors?

As a mom to two young boys, I have aligned my volunteer commitments with my desire to help children prosper in the Quad Cities. I want to be a part of making sure all children and families have the resources they need to be successful and happy. As a returning Board Member, I know the great work of the Child Abuse Council and strongly believe in the mission.

What has been the most meaningful experience you've had since being a member of the BOD?

During my first stint on the CAC Board, I always found the mission moments to be a reminder of why the work is so important. To hear families talk about how the services have changed their family makes Board service worth it.

What experience or skills do you share that help you be a great Board Member?

My knowledge about the Quad Cities community after 15 years at the Quad Cities Chamber helps me ensure we are connecting with the right partners, community leaders and funders to ensure the success of the CAC mission. I also have experiences as a mom of young kids, which helps me bring a different perspective to the Board table

What would you like the community to know about the Child Abuse Council?

The Child Abuse Council is not just about helping children and families out of child abuse, it also focuses on prevention and education to help parents be the best they can be.

What is your hope for the Child Abuse Council in the future?

My hope for the future is that less children and families experience child abuse and trauma so that more children have a strong start and a brighter future.
